

OCA Learn

What do the progress trackers mean on my course page?

Important Note: Progress displayed on OCA Learn isn't monitored and is not a requirement for course completion; progress trackers are for your own use only. The only requirement for your course being marked as 'Complete' is the submission of assignments and confirmation of feedback from your tutor.

If you have finished your course and all activity completion criteria has been met, but your course isn't displaying 100% completion, see the Why doesn't my course show 100% completion? article for more information.

Completion criteria is generally only applied to end of Project activities, such as, Assignments, Feedback Points or Tutorials.

To determine the action(s) required for an activity to be marked as complete, you can select the 'Completion' dropdown button for further details, as shown in the example Assignment below.

 Assignment One: The Shape of Time - Tutorial

Completion ▾

Students must

- Make a submission

At the beginning of this project you were asked to write about your understanding of Time.

You have watched the lecture The Shape of Time, and made notes on the works explored, you have read and made notes on The Art of Contemporary Experience (2013) and you have started your Glossary to develop your understanding of terms used in relation to Time in the Creative Arts.

For this assignment you will need to add a blog post to evidence the following:

You can also view the completion criteria by selecting the activity and finding the labels located underneath the title, as shown in the example Assignment below.

 Assignment One: The Shape of Time - Tutorial

Make a submission

At the beginning of this project you were asked to write about your understanding of Time.

You have watched the lecture The Shape of Time, and made notes on the works explored, you have read and made notes on The Art of Contemporary Experience (2013) and you have started your Glossary to develop your understanding of terms used in relation to Time in the Creative Arts.

For this assignment you will need to add a blog post to evidence the following: